Mary's Lamb

Mary had a little lamb,

Its fleece was white as snow;

And everywhere that Mary went,

The lamb was sure to go.

It followed her to school one day

Which was against the rule;

It made the children laugh and play,

To see a lamb at school.

And so the teacher turned him out,

But still he lingered near,

And waited patiently about,

Till Mary did appear.

And then he ran to her and laid,

His head upon her arm,

As if he said, 'I'm not afraid
You'll shield me from all harm.'

'What makes the lamb love Mary so?'

The little children cry;

'O Mary loves the lamb, you know,'

The teacher did reply.

'And you each gentle animal,
In confidence may bind,
And make it follow at your call,
If you are always kind.

- Sarah Josepha Hale (1788-1879)

"Mary's Lamb appeared, above her [the author] name, in 'The Juvenile Miscellany,' September-October 1830; and soon afterwards in a volume of her work 'Poems for Our Children.' She later stated the poem was based on an actual incident that was partly true in her childhood when she cared for a lamb on her father's farm." (p.366, The Oxford Book Of Children's Verse.)

Jack And Jill

Jack and Jill went up the hill,

To fetch a pail of water;

Jack fell down and broke his crown,

And Jill came tumbling after.

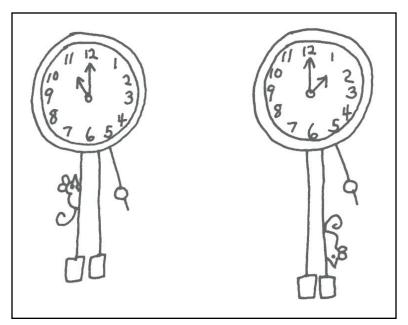

Then up Jack got and home did trot,

As fast as he could caper;

To Old Dame Dob, who patched his knob,

With vinegar and brown paper.

Six little mice sat down to spin;
Kitty passed by and she peeped in.
What are you doing, my little men?
Weaving coats for gentlemen.

Shall I come in and cut off your threads?

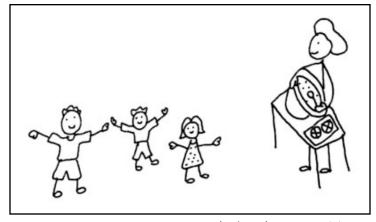

No, no, Mistress Kitty, you'd bite off our heads.

Oh, no, I'll not; I'll help you spin.

That may be so, but you can't come in.

Old King Cole

Old King Cole was a merry old soul,

And a merry old soul was he;

He called for his pipe,

And he called for his bowl,

And he called for his fiddlers three.

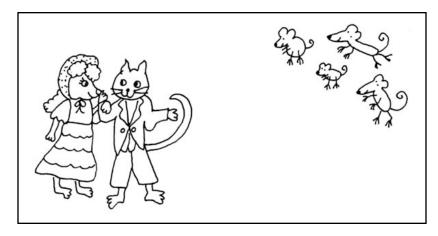

Every fiddler had a fine fiddle,

And a very fine fiddle had he;

Oh there's none so rare as can compare,

With King Cole and his fiddlers three.

- Samuel Griswold Goodrich (1793-1860)

Samuel Griswold Goodrich (1793-1860) was an American author, better known under the pseudonym Peter Parley. He was opposed to nursery rhymes, devoting thirty years to reform children's literature. He very nearly succeeded in banishing the nursery rhyme and fairy tale from the more expensive nurseries of England and America. In 1846, incensed by the revival of the old lore, he said anyone, even a child, could make one up. In writing this rhyme which intentionally makes no sense, Goodrich unknowingly added to the store of nursery rhyme literature.

I Saw A Ship A-Sailing

I saw a ship a-sailing,
A-sailing on the sea;
And, oh! it was all laden
With pretty things for me!

There were candies in the cabin,
And apples in the hold;
The sails were made of silk,
And the masts were made of gold:

And twenty little sailors,
Were skipping on the deck,
And they were little white mice,
With rings about their neck.

The captain was a duck,
With a jacket on his back;
And when the ship began to sail,
The captain cried, "Quack! quack!"

Old Mother Goose

Old Mother Goose, when she wanted to wander, Would ride through the air on a very fine gander.

Mother Goose had a house, 'twas built in a wood, An owl at the door for a sentinel (porter) stood.

She had a son Jack, a plain-looking lad, He was not very good, nor yet very bad.

She sent him to market, a live goose he bought: "Here! mother," says he, "It will not go for naught."

p.51.

Old Mother Goose cont'd.

Jack's goose and her gander grew very fond; They'd both eat together, or swim in one pond.

Jack found one morning, as I have been told, His goose had laid him an egg of pure gold.

Jack rode to his mother, the news for to tell. She called him a good boy, and said it was well.

Jack sold his egg to a rogue who came through, Who cheated him out of a half of his due.

Then Jack went a-courting a lady so gay, As fair as the lily, and sweet as the May.

The rogue and the Squire came behind his back, And began to belabor the sides of poor Jack.

Then old Mother Goose that instant came in, And turned her son Jack into famed Harlequin.

p.52.

Old Mother Goose cont'd.

She then with her wand touched the lady so fine, And turned her at once into sweet Columbine.

The gold egg in the sea was thrown out amain, When Jack jumped in and got the egg back again.

The rogue got the goose, which he vowed he would kill, Resolving at once his pockets to fill.

Jack's mother came in and caught the goose soon, And mounting its back flew up to the moon.
